Pine Hill / South Valley Trails

The Pine Hill / South Valley trail system is a mixture of easy and more challenging trails. Trails north of the power line are old log haul roads and are wider. These trails have minimal elevation change and are an easy ride. South of the power line the trails are hilly and more challenging. Footing in the system is natural wood’s soil along with some rocky areas.

DEC trail markers are used to mark the trails along with wooden trail plaques on each trail. Trail markers are red trail discs in the northern section, after you cross Pierce Run Rd. Yellow markers are used. You will also find “you are here” letters that coincide with your map.

The Rocky Top section may be accessed from Pineapple Junction by riding to Phillips Brook and going either north or south to the L or J access trails or from the new Little Bone Run trail head.

The Pineapple Junction trail head / camping area is located off Carr Rd. At the top of the hill. This is a primitive camping area. You must bring your own water. Please keep it clean and do not tie to trees, use high lines. Use only dead or downed trees for firewood. As per DEC rules no wood from further than 50 miles away may be used. Camping allowed on sites marked with a yellow disc only.

Camping is free though you must have a permit to camp more than 72 hours or have a group larger than ten. There is no camping allowed at the Little Bone Run trail head.
