U.S. Environmental Protection Agency Reviews Cleanup at the Endicott Village Well Field Superfund Site

The U.S. Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) is conducting its fourth five-year review of the Endicott Village Well Field Superfund site located in Endicott, Broome County, New York. This review seeks to confirm that the cleanup conducted at the site continues to protect human health and the environment. The cleanup conducted at the site included the installation of an air stripper to remove volatile organic compounds (VOCs) from the Ranney Well public water supply; extraction and treatment of contaminated groundwater through a supplemental purge well; periodic monitoring of groundwater; and placement of a cap on the Endicott Landfill to address the source of the contaminated groundwater. A summary of cleanup activities and an evaluation of the protectiveness of the implemented cleanup remedies will be included in the five year review report.

What is an EPA Five-Year Review?

The purpose of five year review is to ensure that implemented remedies at Superfund sites function as intended and continue to be protective of human health and the environment. These regular reviews, which are required by federal law when contaminants remain at a site, include:

- Inspection of the site and cleanup technologies;
- Review of monitoring data, operating data, and maintenance records, and
- Determination if any new regulatory requirements have been established since EPA's original cleanup decision was finalized.

When will EPA's Five-Year Review Report be available?

It is anticipated that the five-year review report for the Endicott Village Well Field Superfund site will be available at the website noted below in spring 2016.
